ABSTRACT

A method of producing a document at a remote typing station using information input from a remote user location is provided. Voice and image data are transcribed and correlated by a typist at a 5   remote typing station, and made available as a finished document.